

Oleksandr Burdun - System Architect Resume

Summary

System-focused engineering leader and architect with a track record shaping architectures across multi-team products and scaling engineering structures. Comfortable operating between code, architecture, and delivery, especially where systems are complex, overloaded, or constrained by legacy integrations.

Hands-on architecture and technical direction for large game products: aligned client and backend microservices, refactored core monetization into a backend-driven model with versioning/rollback, and improved CI/CD to keep delivery fast and safe. Drove pragmatic design decisions, refactoring direction, and unblocked hard integration problems under tight product timelines.

Cross-team and organizational reach includes organizing a front-end department from a single contributor into ~50 people across multiple agile teams with dramatically faster onboarding, and introducing architectural solutions (e.g., Dockerized microservices) that later scaled across Playtika infrastructure.

Mentors engineers and tech leads on system design and maintainability. Contributed to AI-assisted development adoption and participated in cross-team initiatives on AI-driven content tooling. Comfortable modeling systems (IDEF0/IDEF3, simple UML-like diagrams) and aligning architecture with real delivery constraints.
